

THE FOX RIVER VALLEY

Much Enthusiasm in Health Reforms Being Shown in That Section of State and Good Work will be Followed Up.

Much enthusiasm in health reforms is being shown in the Fox River Valley. In February Miss Edythe L. M. Tate, state organizer of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, visited a dozen cities, with the result that new anti-tuberculosis associations were formed in Kaukauna, Sturgeon Bay and Waupun, mass meetings for April were arranged in Appleton and Manitowish, and interest in the formation of local organizations was aroused in Green Bay, Neenah and Menasha. The Ripon organization was enlarged and Fond du Lac is planning new work. In every city much enthusiasm was shown in medical inspection of school children. Several cities had started agitation to raise funds for a visiting nurse. In every organization, the enforcement of ordinances, especially those relative to registration and disinfection, is made one of the main objects.

In nearly all cities visited by Miss Tate the effects of the Association's General Lecturer's visits were noticeable. At Sturgeon Bay, where an organization was formed, a mother said that she never had been able to get her four boys to wash their hands but that, after listening to the lecturer, they never failed to do so, and insisted on sleeping with all their windows wide open.

At Waupun the Waupun Improvement Society formed an anti-tuberculosis society, and at Kaukauna the women's club formed the local organization. Oshkosh is planning an open-air school by using a large tent. Ripon is working for a visiting nurse and is agitating the erection of a new high school with better sanitary facilities.

OVER 500 COWS IN CONTEST

Wisconsin Dairy Cow Competition is Proving Big Success—Prizes to be Awarded in November.

The total entries in the Wisconsin Dairy Cow Competition have reached 506 cows. Of this number 211 are Holstein cows, 193 Guernseys and 102 Jerseys. All but 58 of the total number are pure-bred cows. The first yearly records in the competition were completed November 1, last year, and 117 such records have now been completed. The average production of all these cows for the year is as follows: 10,294 pounds of milk and 1,245 pounds milk solids, of which 137.8 pounds were butter fat. This amount of fat would make about 510 pounds of ordinary butter.

The highest yearly record for production of butter fat made thus far, 733.4 pounds, is that of the Holstein cow Pieve Paul, 77,777, owned by R. J. Schaefer, Appleton; while Rightie Pieve DeKol, 728,646, owned by H. P. Giddings, Sheboygan Falls, was a close second, with a production of 733.2 pounds butter fat, 23,414 pounds milk and 2,706 pounds solids. The amount of butter fat given is equivalent to over $50 pounds of commercial butter, or nearly 23 pounds for every day in the year. This record is the more remarkable when it is remembered that the cow was bred in about three months from the last calving.

The winners of the Hoard's Dairyman prize for the highest monthly production of butter fat during the last few months were as follows: October 1910, Caroline Paul Parthena, 77,784, owned by R. J. Schaefer of Appleton, production 92,373 pounds butter fat; November, Queen Juliana Dirkie, 97,608, owned by John Hetts, Ft. Atkinson, 85,099 pounds; December, Wisconsin Las II, 101,358, owned by John Erickson, Waupaca, 90,478 pounds, and January, 1911, Wera Belle Westside, 118,019, owned by S. A. Baird & Son, Waukesha, 93,215 pounds.

The records made thus far by cows entered in the competition are the highest ever made in any competitive tests of dairy cows in this or any other countries and are attracting general attention among dairy farmers and breeders in all parts of the world. The award of prizes for yearling production, aggregating about $5,000 in value, will be made on the completion of the competition November 1, 1911.

"It's The Best Polish I Ever Used"

That's What Every One Says Who Tries

Black Silk Stove Polish

DON'T imagine for a moment that all brands of stove polish are the same. Don't get the idea that to keep a nice glossy shine on your stove you must black it every few days. It's not a question of oft-repeated application. It's a question of the stove polish to use. Black Silk Stove Polish is so much better than other stove polishes that there is absolutely no comparison—it is a class all by itself. It makes a brilliant glossy shine that don't rub or dust off. It attends to the iron—becomes a part of the stove. It makes old stoves look like new and lasts four times as long as any other shine. Get a can and give it a trial. Try it on your parlor stove, your cook stove, or your gas range. If you do not find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Black Silk Stove Polish has been made by the same formula and sold under one name for 25 years. Here is what some of the ladies write us:

"I saw your advertisement but was unable to secure the polish here. I then for a can and found Black Silk Stove Polish so much better than any I had ever used that I asked my hardware dealer to order a supply. He did so, and it is now sold here. It is the best I ever saw, and after blacking the polish did not rub or dust off. It is way ahead of any polish I have ever used."

"I tried the sample box of Black Silk Stove Polish and like it so well that I want to black all the other stoves in the house. Enclosed find 30 cents. Send polish for that amount by return mail. Our hardware merchant does not keep it." "I was visiting friends in Chicago and they used Black Silk Stove Polish on their stoves. It made the best shine I ever saw, and after blacking the polish did not rub or dust off. It is way ahead of any polish I have ever used."

Ask Your Dealer

for Black Silk Stove Polish, and refuse a counterfeit brand. Good value for more than the ordinary kind, so why not have the best. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

BUSY MAN AND WIFE.

A Very Modern Domestic Raiser In One Gasp.

Scene—A pretty little breakfast room in the home of Mr. John Blank, the "Busy Man." Mr. Blank is seen engaged in the stock news in the morning paper, while Mrs. Blank is charming in a pale blue negligee and sips her coffee with an "I've made up my mind" air.

His Wife—John, will you do me a favor?

The Busy Man (without looking up from his paper)—Yes, my dear. What is it?

His Wife (nervously)—Well, I—er—

Busy Man (impatiently)—Hurry, my dear. What is it?

His Wife—I have a confession to make, John—

Busy Man—Don't bother, confessions take up so much valuable time.

His Wife (wistfully)—I don't love you any more.

Busy Man continues reading his paper.

His Wife (angrily)—Didn't you hear what I said?

Busy Man (apparently annoyed at the interruption)—Yes, that's all right; that's all right. Don't worry.

His Wife (decidedly)—But I want you to get a divorce from me!

Busy Man (exasperated)—Isn't that just like a woman! Now, you know, Helen, that I can't take the time from my business for anything so frivolous.

Returns to paper.

His Wife (leaning forward)—But, John, I love some one else—You—

Busy Man (without glancing up)—Of course, of course. (To himself) Sugar has gone up again.

His Wife (sitting up very straight)—And, John Blank, I am going to run away with him!

Busy Man (rising and pushing his chair back)—Please yourself, my dear, only don't expect me to see you off or attend to any of the little details of your departure, because just now I am so busy—haven't a minute—must rush to the office now. (Turning at the door) Shall I see you again?

His Wife (helpless and tearful)—Well, if that's the way you are going to act, John Blank, I shall stay right here. You've just spoiled it all!

Exit John. Curtain.—L. R. S. Henderson in Life.

The Wrong Scent.

A prominent citizen of Washington was traveling over a line of railway with which he was unfamiliar. At a certain point the road passes a fertilizer factory, the odor from which is offensive. It is particularly disagreeable to a lady who is compelled to make the journey daily. As a protection from the obnoxious atmosphere she is accustomed to carry a bottle of lavender salts. As the train approached the factory she produced the phial as usual, unstopped it and applied it to her nostrils. Presently the odors from the factory began to permeate the car. The Washington man endured it as long as he felt that he could. At last he rose to his feet and, approaching the lady, said in his most polite manner, "Madam, may I request you to replace the stopper in that bottle?"—Youth's Companion.

His Morning's Work.

He—Have you washed the dishes, dear?
She—Yes.
"Made the beds?"
"Sure."
"Fed the birds?"
"All of 'em."
"Given the fish fresh water?"
"All done."
"Swept the stoop?"
"Clean as a whistle. But what have you been doing all morning, John?"
"Me? Oh I've been waiting all morning for you to come out and help me pump up the automobile tires!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Too Magnetic.

"I'm sorry to have to bring this watch to you for the third time this month," apologized the man with the fur-trimmed overcoat, "but it has become magnetized again."
"You ought to take something for your blood," grumbled the watch repairer, "there's too much iron in it!"—Chicago Tribune.

Hedgehogs.

Hedgehogs are very strong in the water, swimming with ease against a rapid stream, and with their muscular claws they turn up the nests of trout or salmon. They will breast a very rapid stream, and cold water, as near the freezing point as may be, seems to have no terror for them.

ST. PATRICK'S BIRTH DATE IS UNKNOWN

ALTHOUGH it is well known that when the conversion of the northern countries of Europe to Christianity was systematically entered upon by the early church women exercised a remarkable influence in securing proselytes, there is, strange to say, no record of any special work of the kind done by them in Ireland. While Clothilda, the queen of the Franks, carried the faith to Clovis, and Bertha, the queen of Kent, and Gisella, the queen of Hungary, were leaders in their own countries, no Celtic woman's name is so identified. St. Patrick seems to have had the chief work, as he has the chief glory, in connection with the first religious training of the Emerald Isle.

Sent to Ireland by Pope Celestine in the early part of the fifth century, he confined his labors to no special part of the country, but visited every chieftain and province in turn. To a Welsh invader who had carried away, among other prisoners, many neophytes and had committed many atrocities in his raid St. Patrick addressed the only letter of his authorship known to be extant. This and his "Confessions" are the only authentic remains of his literary work.

Both the birth and death of St. Patrick are involved in so much uncertainty that, as is the case with so many heroes, the anniversary of either event must be fixed principally by conjecture. Some authorities give a latitude of ten years from 377 as the probable time when he was born, and opinions as to his death place the time anywhere from the year 460 to 493, thus giving him an age of from seventy-eight to much beyond a hundred years. If an authentic date cannot be fixed upon there may be some authority for the characteristically Irish assertion of James Whitcomb Riley, that—

ST. PATRICK.

It was upon St. Patrick's day,
In the middle of July,
The weather it was cold and wet,
But the day was hot and dry.

Some Irishmen held that he was born on March 8, while others contended that his birthday was on the next day, and while they contended a solution on peace suggested to "split the difference" by adding the two dates, and so came Patrick by his birthday, March 17.

If the legendary story of the good saint's doings is to have any credence he should be considered as the most chivalrous champion and friend of the weaker sex. As the destroyer even in but one country of that arch enemy which myth and art have so continuously associated with the fall of the race and the unhappiness of woman St. Patrick made the land of the Shamrock, as Moore tells us, so safe and glad a spot the maiden was secure from harm wherever she went:

Sir Knight, I feel not the least alarm;
No son of Erin would offer me harm,
For, though they love woman and gold in store,
Sir Knight, they love honor and virtue more.

St. Patrick's day is usually celebrated in Ireland with a fair, or "pattern day," when various ways of getting the simple peasants' money are devised by the wily tent owners, who sell "fine American gold rings" for a shilling and yell their wares with all the lustiness of Daniel O'Connell's fish-woman.

A dance on the village green or near the town pump is one of the great features of the day. Shamrocks are worn by everybody, and the little girls wear crosses made up of gayly colored ribbons on their right arms, over which is pinned a shamrock, denoting their loyalty to their country and the church. Local orators deliver patriotic addresses, boys bet on the annual donkey races, priests preach long sermons on "the glorious patron saint," the police watch for revolutionary riots, and careful mothers look out for Cupid's plots, but within there is a tradition in Ireland that more people fall in love on that day and more matches are made than on all the other holidays. But no one blames St. Patrick.

Petition asking that a street light be placed at intersection of George and Ellis streets was read and referred to lighting committee to investigate and report at next meeting.

Ald. Ald. McDonald introduced a motion which was seconded by Aitenburg, authorizing the comptroller to aid Mrs. Werachowski in the sum of $8 per month until such time as her health improves or in discharge of comptroller it was no longer necessary. Ald. Abb moved to amend this motion by granting her aid in the sum of $6 per month for three months more. Motion was then seconded by Ald. Upon motion of Ald. Redfield seconded by McDonald, the clerk was directed to advertise for bids for rental of said land and to report at its present condition. This motion prevailed.

E. W. Sellers appeared before the council and complained about the stench which heaved in the neighborhood of Sellers Hotel and asked that something be done to relieve them of this situation. No action was taken.

Ald. McDonald, a member of the special committee appointed by the mayor to investigate and report on the city's interest in the made lands which abut upon both banks of the city, advised the council that they had had Mr. Maxfield, county surveyor, make plats or maps showing all made lands abutting upon said slough, and found that there was considerable land to which title institution action in court. It was moved by Ald. McDonald, seconded by Abb, that city attorney be directed to purchase such abstracts as are necessary, and at once proceed with an action to quiet title to this land. Motion prevailed by following vote: Abb, Aitenburg, Cook, McDonald, Port, Redfield, Schenk, Scribner, Sparks and Urowski, (10) voting aye.

Upon motion of Ald. McDonald the mayor appointed a committee consisting of McDonald, Redfield and Schenk to investigate the advisability of lowering the Wisconsin river bridge, and to report on same at next meeting of council. No further business appearing, the council adjourned.

The Chicago authorities have voted to limit all buildings begun after September 1st to a height of 200 feet, and if they mean Chicago feet that is surely high enough.

Mrs. Porfirio Diaz, wife of the president of Mexico, is a patrician, highly educated and refined, but the opposite of her husband in many respects. She has a delightful personality, and, though little heard of outside her own country, she is regarded with much affection by the people of Mexico.

Train and Track.

Conspicuous in the stations of the elevated railway in Boston are illuminated signs bearing the words, "Women First, Please."

Statistics show that approximately 41 per cent of the earnings of electric railways in the United States are expended to effect settlements of accidents to persons or property and to defray legal expenses in connection with these claims.

Roughly speaking, there are about 2,250,000 freight cars at present in service on American railroads. Each one of these is carried by at least eight wheels whose standard diameter is thirty-three inches, so that the total number of wheels in service is in the neighborhood of 18,000,000 and their value at the lowest estimate $180,000,000.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can

PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention, if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the

A fatality in connection with the explosion in the powder and dynamite mills at Pleasant Prairie, a few miles from Kenosha, last week, that is of local interest, is the death of Wm. P. Robinson, an old resident of Kenosha, 66 years of age. He had long suffered with heart trouble, but was improving. He had a number of friends in this city, having visited here several times while his daughter, Miss Elizabeth, now Mrs. Wm. Hartley of Paris, Ill., was supervisor of music in our public schools.

MEETING WELL ATTENDED
Otto P. Seifritz, of Milwaukee, Speaks on American Federation of Catholic Societies at St. Joseph's Church.
Otto P. Seifritz of Milwaukee, state organizer of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, was a Stevens Point visitor last Sunday, coming here to deliver an address on the objects and benefits of this organization, which has a very large membership throughout the country. The meeting was held at St. Joseph's church and was well attended by gentlemen connected with that and the other Catholic congregations of the city. The American Federation is composed of state and county federations and associate members, and as forty-two took out memberships on Sunday, a county federation may soon be formed.
The federation has been doing good christian work in some of the counties of this state for a number of years, and was organized about twelve years ago. It was organized as a religious body, for the betterment of christianity and one of its principal objects is to uphold the laws of our state and federal constitutions. In politics its object is to favor that which is good and of benefit to the masses, and oppose by intelligent persuasion any legislation that may be introduced that would be detrimental, the immediate or final object being not to undermine any of our christian, charitable or public institutions. The federation also looks with disfavor upon what it considers the two extremes in this country today, socialism and capitalistic monopoly.

Departed for New Home.

While the many friends of Mrs. D. E. Catlin and daughter, Mrs. Mollie Catlin Meeker, were aware of the fact that they would soon depart for the east, those who knew that the time had been set for last Friday night were very few. In fact the ladies rather stole a march on their friends. Mrs. Catlin had resided here since girlhood and Stevens Point had always been the home of Mrs. Meeker, and the thought of meeting and saying "good bye" to hundreds of friends of a life time caused them to withhold as a practical secret the day and hour of their leaving.

Both ladies are now at the home of their daughter and sister, Mr. F. C. Bailey, at Grand Haven, Mich., but Mrs. Meeker will leave there in a few days for Geneva, N. Y., three miles from which city her husband is the owner of a fruit and dairy farm. Mrs. Catlin will divide her time between the homes of her daughters. Continued good health, happiness and much prosperity is wished both ladies in their new eastern homes.

Some Fool Scheme

If everyone who is tempted to invest his money in some fool scheme would consult his banker first, most of these schemes would be defeated. Their big advertisements telling of immense dividends, their alluring circulars into forming the unwary how easily $100 is transformed into $1,000 have caught many suckers during these prosperous times and much money has been taken out of legitimate channels to line the pockets of these grafters. Accumulating money by saving and 3 per cent. looks very slow to most people and this is where the man with his get-rich-quick scheme comes in. It is far better to be safe than sorry; far better to have your few hundreds only drawing 3 per cent. than not to have it at all. It may be set down as a perfectly safe proposition that anything offering returns beyond those possible in legitimate channels of business is a fake. If something "looks good" to you come in and talk it over with us. We may know something about it which you don't and this knowledge is yours for the asking. If it is all right we will tell you so and if it is all wrong we will tell you that. Remember your banker is your friend. He cannot prosper unless you do.

We pay three per cent. interest on savings accounts and certificates. You can start a savings account here with one dollar or more. You intend to save—start NOW. All business confidential.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND IS IN SIGHT

Special Reason For Celebrating St. Pat- rick's Day This Year. Redmond's Great Fight Almost Won at Last.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.
(Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.)

AT last home rule for Ireland is in sight. It has been a long battle, dating from the days of Daniel O'Connell, but it is on the eve of being won. The last election meant two definite things—that the peers would be deprived of the veto and that an Irish parliament would again sit in Dublin.

The central figure in the fight is John body. Without him and his band of Nationalists the Asquith government could not live an hour. Neither could any other government formed in the house of commons. Redmond has the balance of power, and his foes have dubbed him "the emperor." He has used his advantage to demand but one thing—home rule.

Redmond is almost as well known and popular in America as across the seas. Part of his campaign has been conducted on this side of the water. One of his many visits occurred less than one year ago, when he spoke with several of his parliamentary associates at Buffalo. As a result of his appeal for funds at that time and earlier came a new issue in British politics. The cry of "American dollars" was heard wherever Unionist orators held forth. The Liberals and Nationalists countered rather neatly by giving out a list of Tory peers who had married American heiresses.

Despite all these assaults on Redmond's election fund the Nationalists made noteworthy gains and the Liberal party made a gain. The United Irish league he made a speech in which he predicted that the lords would be deprived of the veto before the coronation and without the creation of new peers. He also said that so long as the government supported the program of the abolition of the veto and the enactment of home rule the Nationalists would vote with the Liberal coalition, but the moment any deviation was shown there would be a change in the party's attitude. As any such change would mean the instant downfall of the Asquith ministry, that language is sufficiently plain. The beauty of it is that Redmond is a man of his word and has the power to enforce his demands. A new sun is rising at last over the "old sod."

John Edward Redmond was born in Dublin in 1851. His father was William Archer Redmond, himself a member of parliament. The boy was educated at Trinity college, Dublin. He became a barrister at Gray's Inn in 1886 and the following year a barrister at the Irish bar. At the age of thirty he was elected to parliament, in which he has served ever since, representing New Ross for four years, North Wexford for six and Waterford for the past twenty years. He was a follower of Parnell and defended his chief even after the divorce incident and the resulting division of the Irish party. In 1900, when the party was reunited, Redmond was placed at the head, despite the fact that he had made bitter attacks on the leaders of the other faction. His generalship in re-organizing and leading the Nationalists has made possible the present success. One of his chief services to his country was his work in organizing the home rule propaganda in England.

W. T. Stead has borne testimony to the fact that during the dark days of the Boer war Redmond was the only man who led an opposition worthy of the name. He has the caliber of a prime minister, is one of the best parliamentarians in the house of commons and is a speaker who always draws a full house.

The history of the home rule struggle shows how a righteous cause must ultimately triumph despite all the obstacles it may encounter. After the long years devoted to the cause by O'Connell, Butt and Parnell it was not till 1885 that Gladstone came into power with the avowed intention of introducing a bill creating an Irish parliament. This was defeated in the house by a majority of thirty. It was eight years later that the Gladstone home rule measure passed the commons and was vetoed by the lords. Its foes then gleefully proclaimed the cause dead. Eighteen years have passed and again the question is up. This time the cause of Erin will triumph and in its victory will dethrone the house of peers that before re-jected it.

Mr. Redmond's motto in the long struggle has been to make English government of Ireland difficult and dangerous. This recalls a remark of Lord Morris at a London dinner party. He was the only Irishman present and kept a cynical silence while the others discussed the Irish difficulty. Finally, on being appealed to point blank for his opinion, he retorted:

"Well, d'ye see, when a stupid people try to govern a clever people there'll always be some difficulty in it. An' that's just the Irish difficulty."

eral coalition has one more majority than before. It is all over except passing the bills to cinch the house of lords and give Ireland her liberty. There is an especial reason for Irishmen to celebrate St. Patrick's day this year.

When Mr. Redmond recently was unanimously re-elected president of important post. He lived in Chicago some years before going to Washington. Mr. Kilkenny says the invitation to the home going applies to Irish-Americans in every walk of life. He said recently:

"The formation of the association resulted through the courtesy of the press in widespread interest, and correspondence from every quarter of the United States, Canada and even Australia began to be received. This was

IRISH HOME GOING ASSOCIATION AND ITS YOUNG FOUNDER

By MATTHEW T. CORCORAN.
(Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.)

IT is confidently expected that many thousands of Americans born in Ireland will join this year's procession of pilgrims who, under the auspices of the Irish Home Going Association of America, will revisit their native isle. From May 1 to Oct. 30 is the period set for the annual re-visiting. The movement does not involve a mere excursion, but the home going of individuals and groups at any time between the dates mentioned. Last year was the occasion of the first home going. That it was remarkably successful from the point of view of the originator of the movement and his associates is proved by the report submitted by Francis J. Kilkenny of Washington, president of the association and author of the home going idea and plan.

"A Raphael faced young Irish American," wrote a correspondent two years ago, "has hit upon a plan for the delivery of his native land from the condition of industrial stagnation in which it has so long existed and its conversion into a realm of activity and prosperity. The plan amounts to an inspiration. The Irish of America are to be asked to a homecoming in the land of their birth in the summer of 1910. The invitation is to be extended particularly to those Irishmen who have accumulated wealth in this country. These men are urged to return to the Emerald Isle for the pleasure of it in the first place, but in the second place with an eye out for business opportunity."

Mr. Kilkenny, who is secretary to the controller of the nation's currency, is a young Irishman who came to this country a poor lad and worked his way up step by step to his present handled largely by myself and by the national secretary, Joseph D. Sullivan, outside of business hours. At least 5,000 inquiries were received. These concerned not alone the underlying features of the Irish pilgrimage, but included solicitation and suggestion from individuals and companies throughout the world having for sale songs, post-cards, badges, buttons, umbrellas and even real estate. A man in Iowa suggested that each pilgrim carry with him and plant in Ireland a fruit tree."

IRELAND'S SONG OF HOPE BY F. H. DE QUINCEY

LAND of the warrior hearts,
Land of the souls of fire,
Thy sad face pale
To the dawn unveil,
From silence bonds unchain thy lyre.
Above thee slavery's dark cloud parts,
And tyrant foes, abashed, retire!

LAND of the strong and brave,
Land of the mead and true,
Thy spreading plains
Neath the mild spring rains
Again are shining, fresh and new,
And singing tales thy fair shores lave.
Thy hopes shall soon be ripened too!

FREE shall thy pure veins flow,
Thy dormant pulses leap,
The scalding tear
Shall disappear
From thy weak cheek and humble creep
The hydra-headed wrong which low
Plunged thy fair brow in sorrow's deep!

THY brooks and bounding streams
Grim war no more shall dye;
The call to arms,
The strife's alarms,
The flame sheets, shrouding earth and sky,
Shall burst no more upon thy dreams,
But gentle slumbers seal thine eye.

FAMINE and plague no more
Upon thy loved shall feed;
The vampire maws
Of bloody laws
Shall choke of their insatiate greed,
And o'er thy rock encircled shore
The seraph Peace all blessings lead.

THE gives upon thy feet,
The throng around thy heart,
Their cankerous grasp
Shall soon unclasp,
And through the wide earth's every part
Resounding notes of triumph sweet
Shall tell the joy that free thou art!

A Fierce Night Alarm

Is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin of Manchester, O., (R. R. No. 2) for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Some times in severe attacks," he wrote "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for cough, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rosslin and eleven of their children arrived here the first of the week from near Genoa Junction, Walworth county, and will soon be located on their new farm, the Chas. U. Malick property just below the city limits on the west side of the Wisconsin river. The other two sons are expected here today with three car loads of live stock, machinery and household goods.

Mr. Malick's personal property is now enroute to Walworth county, having been loaded Tuesday, and includes twenty head of registered Jersey cattle. An auction took place on the farm last Saturday, when several of the cows were offered for sale, but their value as butter producers is not appreciated by the average farmer and the expected prices were not offered. The Malick family will leave for their new home this week.

STEVENS POINT, WIS., MARCH 15, 1911.

CHINA SWEEPED BY BLACK DEATH

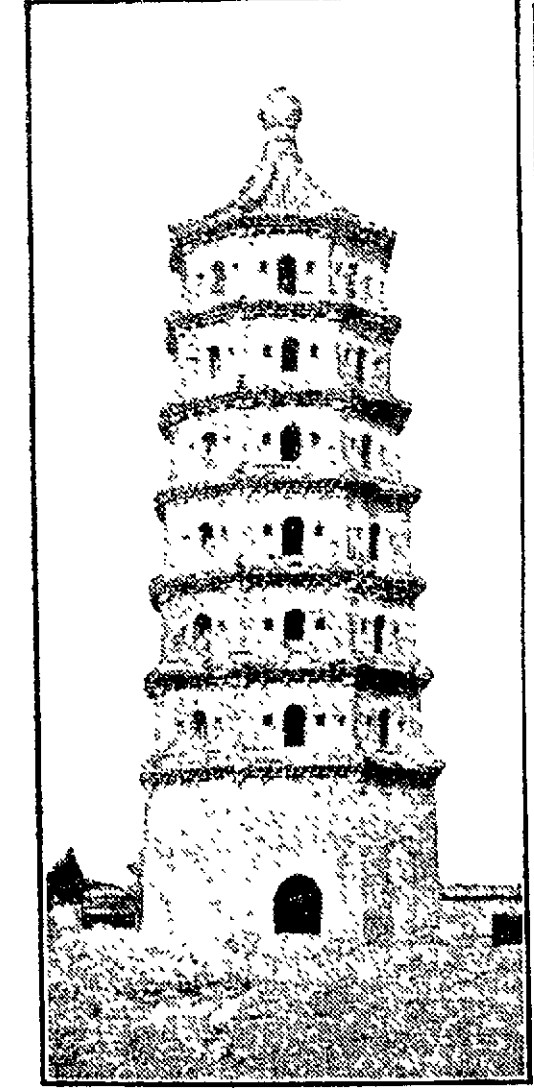

BURYING VICTIMS OF THE PLAGUE

GROWING more voracious each day, its resistless tentacles constantly reaching into new districts for victims, the great Chinese plague is gradually leaving behind it a trail of death and disaster, and apparently defying the efforts of both Chinese and foreign physicians to check it. The fatal pest is the "black death," and it is sweeping through China in its most malignant form. No cripples or convalescents are left in its trail, nothing but death. For it proves fatal in a very few hours to each person it lays its hand on. There is no middle ground with this dreaded pest. It is either escaping it altogether or death.

The Oriental plague is numbering its victims by scores of thousands; it will not be long until it is by hundreds of thousands. At Harbin, Manchuria, 6,000 bodies of victims were burned and the ashes buried on the outskirts of the city. Forty-eight hundred of these came from the Chinese section of the city and the balance from the Russian quarters. On one day 16 stacks of coffins and seven pits, filled with bodies and oiled logs, blazed outside the city walls.

The happenings of Europe during the seventeenth century, when the "black plague" swept through the country, are being repeated with all their gruesomeness in China today. At first the Chinese, faithful to their weird religious rites for the dead, objected to the plague victims being burned, and the authorities ran up against a great deal of trouble. Then all was changed. Fear, bordering on panic, gripped the Chinese. No more do they defy the medical officers and keep the sick and dead hidden. In the fight for life it has become a case of brother against brother, or father against son.

The stricken ones are forced into the streets, to starve or freeze, or to fall perishing from the swift and deadly attack the plague makes on its victims. Passersby avoid them, but sometimes those engaged in sanitary work, masked and bandaged, reach them before they die and cart them to the pesthouse, or, if they are dead, to the funeral pyres. Not infrequently an outcast is to be seen kneeling and making his obeisance before the grave of an ancestor, in sight of a pile of bodies of which he is soon to become one.

The mortality among the physicians and the hospital attendants is high, considering the means taken for their protection, and many doctors, nurses and orderlies are succumbing to the disease. No serum has yet been discovered to aid in checking the disease, although the Chinese physicians hope soon to have one of their own, the foreign importations having proved ineffective. The courage of these faithful attendants, numbering many foreign missionaries, physicians and nurses among them, is wonderful. With scarcely an exception they remain at their work, fighting the plague already in their district, or making preparations to do battle with it when it arrives.

In northern Manchuria the plague is spreading rapidly, while in Tientsin, the native city, conditions are becoming alarmingly worse. The utter absence of any intelligent inspection and the inadequate medical organization make each case a new center for the spread of the infection, since there is no isolation to prevent contact.

No ray of comfort shines from the reports being received from Harbin, where the Manchurian plague is raging, or from Peking and other places in the infected district of north China where the grim reaper is daily cutting wider swaths in the harvest of dead. The Manchurian plague is as much of a mystery as it was when it first appeared, and all that the best skill possessed by European experts can do is barren of results. Once the disease manifests itself in an individual all hope for him is abandoned and as a preventive nothing so far attempted is effective in any degree.

The city of Harbin has its Chinese and Russian, or European quarters. The former is, of course, much the more unsanitary and crowded and there the deaths have been most numerous.

Where coffins are obtainable (the supply is far below the demand) they are piled up like cordwood, saturated with kerosene and they and their contents are burned. But most of the bodies are placed in pits with oiled logs and burned. This process of wholesale incineration goes on daily. The mortality among doctors and nurses is frightful, Europeans seeming as susceptible as natives. The people are frantic with fear or deadened by the terrible dread which bears them down. At first the natives, having no faith in the foreign doctors and European methods, did all they could to obstruct. They hid away their dying and dead and thereby added to the peril. Now fear has made them heartless.

Those engaged in sanitary work constantly patrol the streets, muffled against the bitter cold and with their faces masked in the hope of escaping contagion. They gather up the dying or dead, put them into carts and hustle them to the pest houses or to the funeral pyres.

In spite of every precaution the disease is spreading. Hundreds are dying daily in Peking. In Chefoo and nearby towns the disease has appeared. Throughout the whole of Shanfung province the plague is scattered and the mortality is increasing rapidly. In Kwanchentze, a large town west of Kerin province, close to the Manchurian railway, the deaths average 100 per day. In several parts of eastern Siberia the plague has appeared and that it will rapidly work its way westward is feared.

In Europe every precaution is being taken and it is hoped to keep out the plague. The fear is that it will come overland by way of Russia. Medical experts, however, believe that the greater cleanliness of the people, medical skill, modern sanitation and rigid quarantine will prevent the plague entering Europe, or at least prevent it becoming a scourge.

America Claims the Bean.

Until 1883 the bean was believed to have originated in Asia. Researches among the flora of ancient Peruvian sepulchres show that it was known in antiquity in Peru. No fewer than 60 different species have been found in the old burying places and 49 of the 50 were distinctly American. The sepulchres explored date back to the period beginning with the twelfth century and ending with the fifteenth. Within them was a great number of beans—so many that it is reasonable to suppose that beans held an important place in the agriculture of the ancient people of Peru. Probably the common dried bean of modern commerce was well-known in the antiquity world long before the discovery of Columbus.

Pretty Decorative Effect.

Decorative effects of novel kind have been produced by introducing substances of higher melting point into alloys heated to plastic condition. In the experiments made, for instance, 90 parts of tin and 10 of copper were melted at 500 degrees Cent., and then cooled down to 220 degrees. The mass was plastic at the latter temperature, so that fragments of pale blue smalt glass were readily forced into it. The whole was then molded, cooled and polished, and the product showed a brilliant combination of blue particles evenly distributed in a white metallic matrix. When iron filings were worked into an alloy of 98 parts of lead and 2 of antimony at a temperature of about 250 degrees, the result was a kind of hard lead. A suggested application of practical kind is the adding of iron to bearing metals, such as antimony, as in this way the bearing metal may be not only cheapened in cost, but may be made as hard as the shaft supported, thus greatly increasing durability.

Distance Covered in a Waltz.

Every one has observed that the lady or the beau who objects strenuously to taking any sort of exercise and pleads incapacity to endure strain will dance through a full and exhaustive program, being in this fashion seduced into a most vigorous, and under proper conditions beneficial, exercise.

It seems that in a normal little dance the parties travel something like 1 1/2 miles, and do it in much more strenuous fashion than they would if they calmly set out to walk the same distance. An average waltz takes you over something like three-quarters of a mile, and the various old-fashioned square dances are at least half a mile long.

To make dancing beneficial the room should be thoroughly ventilated so that a constant supply of fresh oxygen is available for the overworked heart.

Rings Replace Straps.

A newly invented substitute for the street car strap is a series of iron rings, attached to a bar running the length of the car. Each ring is fastened with a spring, and returns to a uniform position when the hand is withdrawn from it. The rings are not slightly, but their cleanliness attracts, a polished white surface being kept well scrubbed by the transportation companies which have adopted them.

"Robinson Crusoe's" Peculiarity.

Charles Dickens said of "Robinson Crusoe" that it is the only instance of a universally popular book that could make no one either laugh or cry.

We Aim to Please.

Old Lady (who has come aboard during heavy rain)—How nice of these railroad folks to have a clothline up. I'll just hang my shawl up to dry.—Judge.

An Old Cypress.

A cypress tree at Chapultepec, Mex., has a trunk 118 feet round, and from the rings around it its age is 6,200 years.
